
President's Message

Happy New Year! This is my first newsletter as SAWH president, and I consider it an honor to fill this position and have a chance to update you on the organization's activities.

I hope that all of you were able to attend the SAWH talk and reception at the Southern Historical Association this fall in Richmond, Virginia. If not, you missed a fascinating presentation by Michele Gillespie and wonderful reception, in honor of Michele and outgoing SAWH president Cindy Kierner. Sandy Treadway graciously opened up the Library of Virginia for the festivities and even provided a band. The combination of good scholarship, good food, good music, and good company in a beautiful space made for a great time. Thanks to the work of Jennifer McDaid, who coordinated the book sale, and volunteers Heidi Giusto, Felicity Turner, and Kelly Kennington, the SAWH cleared a record amount at the book sale. Many thanks also to everyone who came to the event, bought books, and made the sale such a success.

For those of you who have not visited the SAWH web site recently, I would recommend that you do so. There you will find links to the mentoring tool kit, a series of essays on various professional topics, intended to provide guidance to members at various stages of their careers. We are all in debt to Antoinette Van Zelm and her committee for their leadership in this effort, particularly in establishing the series' uniquely effective voice, one that avoids the all-too-familiar didactic and instead combines humor with insight.

Following in the spirit of the mentoring toolkit, the ad hoc SAWH teaching committee, led by Nupur Chauduri, is creating a new site for members to post and share information about teaching. The committee has done a wonderful, inventive job, as you will see in the article in this newsletter, by committee members Elizabeth Dunn and Elsa Barkley Brown, outlining the project's plans. The site is still under construction and not yet ready to open up to the membership, so we encourage members to contact the committee members with their thoughts and ideas.

The Eighth Southern Conference on Women's History will be held on the campus of the University of South Carolina, in Columbia, June 4-6, 2009. Marjorie Spruill, the conference organizer, has been busily (and successfully) raising money and already has most of the organizational issues well in hand. You will find the call for papers by program co-chairs Allison Sneider and Joan Johnson in this newsletter. Everyone is encouraged to put together a panel—H-SAWH provides a forum for those who are looking for others with similar interests for panels. Conferences are one of the highlights of the SAWH: so please mark your calendars and make to participate.

Finally, I would like to remind you about the increase in dues, effective this year. Hopefully, you have received the letter announcing the change already. But the Executive Council considers the decision an important one, so I want to reiterate the reasoning here. The increases are as follows: from the current $5.00 to $10.00 for graduate students; from $18.00 to $25.00 for regular members; from $200.00 to $250.00 for life members. The Executive Council also agreed to create a new "sustaining life member" category, to encourage and enable life members to contribute yearly to the organization in addition to their one-time membership. The increase will take effect for all those paying dues on January 1, 2008.

The SAWH's operating budget depends on members' dues. Although the organization is in excellent financial shape, most of our reserves are dedicated to special projects and cannot be used for basic operating expenses, which have been increasing as the organization expands. We have been very successful in raising funds for our various awards, including the new Anne Firor Scott award. The mentoring committee has prepared an impressive set of essays—a mentoring "tool kit"—that is now available through the SAWH site on H-Net. And the new teaching committee is in the process of preparing an interactive web site with syllabi, teaching materials, and links to other sites. We are excited about all these projects; we hope that you are as well. But everything we do adds to our administrative costs. At the same time, the dedication of our members has produced some unforeseen effects: a welcome flurry of new life members, who pay a one-time lump sum, means that we have fewer members paying yearly dues. To keep our operation going and to cover new programs, we need more and more regular income.

The dues increase adds just $5.00 more for graduate students, $7.00 for regular members, and $50 for life memberships. Even with these increases, our dues structure remains much lower than that of most professional organizations. And we would like to continue doing more for our members than other organizations. So we hope that you will understand—and support—the dues increase.

Laura F. Edwards
SAWH President

Pedagogical Resources

Created in December of 2006, the SAWH Ad Hoc Committee on Teaching was charged to find ways to support the teaching of SAWH members. We have begun to build a wiki to be linked to the SAWH website and are in the process of finalizing arrangements for security and adding content: syllabi for various survey-level courses, first-person essays concerning different aspects of teaching, brief responses to questions about teaching issues, and critical reviews of technological applications. The committee will also plan a workshop or roundtable on teaching for the June 2009 SAWH conference.

Please contact committee chair Nupur Chaudhuri, nupurc@earthlink.net to:

- Recommend topics and types of material for the wiki
- Contribute your own syllabi or descriptions of creative assignments
- Suggest names of particularly excellent teachers who might be willing to contribute an essay or participate in the conference program

Member News

Catherine Allgor (University of California-Riverside) has been promoted to full professor.

Willoughby Anderson (University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill) received an American Association of University Women American Dissertation Fellowship for 2007-2008. In addition, her comment, "The Past on Trial: Birmingham, the Bombing, and Restorative Justice," was accepted for publication by the California Law Review.

Juliana Barr (University of Florida) published her book, Peace Came in the Form of a Woman: Indians and Spaniards in the Texas Borderlands, with University of North Carolina Press in March 2007.

Sidney Bland (James Madison University) has had an article, "Shaping the Life of the New Woman: The Crusading Years of The Delineator," accepted for publication in American Periodicals and also provided the address, "The Madison Century," to open the 2007-08 academic and centennial year.

Katherine Davis Cann (Spartanburg Methodist College) had her book Common Ties: A History of Textile Industrial Institute published in September 2007 by Hub City Writers' Project. It examines the history of the Textile Industrial Institute at Spartanburg Junior College and Spartanburg Methodist College. She has also been appointed Chair of the Division of Social Sciences at SMC.

Lee A. Farrow (Auburn University Montgomery) has recently published "From Jackson Square to Red Square: Donald Renshaw and Famine Relief in Russia, 1921-1923," (in Russian) in Russia and the World Through One Another's Eyes (Moscow: Institute of Russian History, 2007). She has also been appointed Associate Dean of the School of Liberal Arts for the Term 2007-2009.

Glenda Gilmore (Yale University) published her book, Defying Dixie: The Radical Roots of Civil Rights, 1919-1950 with W.W. Norton. It was released in January.

Elizabeth Gritter (University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill) received a $1000 Graduate Student Opportunity Fund from the UNC-Chapel Hill Graduate School and a $1000 Student Life Enhancement Fund from the UNC-Chapel Hill of the Office of the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs for taking a civil rights bus tour related to her dissertation research and civil rights studies. She also received a $400 grant from the social justice organization, for her dissertation research in Memphis, and a $200 from the Y, a social justice campus organization.

Barbara Krauthamer (New York University) was a co-recipient of the 2007 Letitia Woods Brown Memorial Article Prize, awarded by the Association of Black Women Historians for an article published in the Journal of Women's History in 2007.

Exhibit

Purses, Platforms, and Power: Women Changing Charlotte in the 1970s opened in 2007 as a permanent exhibition in the Wachovia Atrium, College & 3rd Streets, in downtown Charlotte. Based on an award-winning temporary exhibit created in 2005 by the Levine Museum of the New South, it features photos, artifacts, and six oral history videos.

Eight Southern Association of Women's Historians Conference on Women's History June 4-6, 2009 Call for Papers

The SAWH invites proposals for the Eighth Southern Conference on Women's History, to be held on the campus of the University of South Carolina, Columbia, SC. The conference provides a stimulating and congenial forum for the discussion of all aspects of women's history. Its program seeks to reflect the best in recent scholarship, especially by young scholars and graduate students. The program also wishes to reflect the diversity of women's historical experiences and to explore the histories of women from a wide range of racial, class, and ethnic backgrounds. Proposals in Public History are especially welcome.

The Program Committee solicits proposals for complete panels and individual papers, as well as roundtable sessions. Proposals for panels or sessions should include the following: a) a cover sheet with the session title, paper titles, and name, address, affiliation, and email addresses of the chair, panelists, and commentator, b) a 300 word summary of the panel or session as a whole, c) a 300 word proposal for each paper or presentation, and d) a brief (one page) curriculum vitae for each participant. Individual paper proposals should include the following: a) a cover sheet with the paper title, and name address, affiliation, and email address of the panelist b) a 300 word proposal, and c) a brief (one page) curriculum vitae. Those interested in chairing a session or commenting are also invited to send a c.v. to the Program Committee.

All materials and attachments should be emailed to the program committee at SAWH2009@gmail.com. Your email should include your name, affiliation, phone and email address; please send the supporting materials (cover sheet, proposal and cv) in a MS Word attachment. (Email inquiries may be directed to committee co-chairs Joan Johnson at joanmjohnson@comcast.net or Allison Sneider at sneider@rice.edu.) The deadline for receipt of all materials is August 1, 2008.

Foundation

Colleagues of the late historian Ruthe Winegarten have formed the Ruthe Winegarten Memorial Foundation for Texas Women's History. It is a 501 c(3) organization based in Austin. The website for the organization is under construction and will appear in the spring as womenintexashistory.org.
